Lessons from Superstorm Sandy: Steps Every Homeowner Should Take

Superstorm Sandy was a powerful storm that packed some memorable lessons. The wind and water damage hit the East coast the hardest, but the remnants of the fall storm stretched as far north as eastern Canada.

The property damage and losses from the superstorm are estimated to be in the billions for the Northeast region of the U.S.

To protect yourself and your property from severe weather, review these important steps recommended by consumer safety advocates, the Insurance Information Institute (I.I.I.) and Institute for Business and Home Safety (IBHS).

- Check your home insurance coverage - Be sure you have the right kind and amount of insurance, enough to rebuild your home and replace your belongings. It's always best to review your coverage with your insurance agent every year.

Windshields - Repair or Replace?

Whack! A rock hits your windshield. Your eyes scan for damage and your brain wonders if windshield damage means a quick repair - or replacement.

A chip or crack doesn't always mean a new windshield. Most windshield repair shops can fix up to quarter-sized rock chips and cracks as long as 3 inches. Since repairs are cheaper than replacements, Erie Insurance will waive the deductible and pay for the repair. If a replacement is needed, the deductible will apply.

Whether you're going to repair or replace, it's best to take action right away.
